Wild West Motor Company Has Moved Operations and Corporate Headquarters Into Larger Facility

SAN DIEGO, California – Wild West Motor Company, Inc. announced today that they have moved their corporate headquarters and manufacturing operations into a larger facility located in San Diego, California. Paul Seiter, CEO, states, “The new facility will help us accommodate the rapid and steady increase in demand for our premium brand of motorcycles. Our new facility has over twice the space as our previous Poway operation and can accommodate production of over 600 units annually.”

The new building has a separate area that houses the company’s design studio. The design studio is adjacent to the company’s engineering offices and is set up for clay modeling, mock ups, and general R&D work. The machine shop floor space has been expanded to allow substantial growth in prototyping, tooling, and production capacity.
